City wants home for big trucks

Pleasanton city officials are trying to get something going in the way of a truck terminal, while over in Livermore truckers appear to be ignoring five or six small commercial truck terminals in droves.

The Pleasanton police department asked the Alameda County Fair Board whether it was interested in providing a few acres of fenced, paved land for a truck parking area. No, said fair officials.

City Manager Bill Edgar told The Times yesterday he also wants to approach City and County of San Francisco, owners of most of the vacant land across Bernal Avenue from the fairgrounds, with the same proposal.

If the city can't lease the land from San Francisco, maybe a private entrepeneur could., said Edgar.

"It's a tough problem," Edgar said about the clash between truckers' needs to have their vehicles close to home and their neighbors' needs for peace, quiet, and good aesthetics. "We could really get tough and enforce the letter of the law, which would mean no parking anywhere in the city limits. But they have no place to go, so we allow them to park on the frontage road next to Sunol Boulevard and the deadend road near the Mobil station on Hopyard Road."

A check with Livermore City Manager Bill Parness's office yesterday showed that city has five or six commercial truck yards with hundreds of available spaces. But it would be unreasonable to expect Pleasanton truckers to use those yards, said Edgar. After all, not even the Livermore truckers are using them.

Edgar suspects that truckers object to having to pay a fee to park their trucks. They already pay expensive road fees just to get into the business and they feel they have a right to park in front of their homes, said the city manager.

The wife of a Pleasanton trucker called The Times yesterday and expressed the opinion that if the city would provide a well - located truck terminal, local truckers would use it.

The resident, Leah Jones, said she doesn't blame Mission Park resident Chuck Seymour for being annoyed by trucks parked near Sunol Boulevard at the Mission Park entrance. However, "the city told us to park there". Her husband and other truckers really would rather have a nice five acre paved, fenced truck parking lot somewhere in the city, she said.

Edgar acknowledeged that the city advised Mr. Jones that he could not park on Valley Avenue extension, as he had been doing, but that parking on Sunol Bouelevard would be tolerated.

Quarry pit plans set 50 year goal

Historic moment

The Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers embraces California's first woman priest, the Rev. Susan Bergmens, ordained Wednesday night in Pleasanton. The joyous occassion, interrupted briefly by a protest is recounted on page 4.

PLEASANTON — The four gravel companies tearing up some 3,000 acres of land off Stanley Boulevard look as if they'll be there forevr.

But their planners are looking ahead to the year 2020, when the last pit will be emptied and the last truck will rumble off with its heavy load.

When Kaiser, Lone Star, Rhodes - Jamieon and Cal Rock move out half a century from now, will they leave behind deep pit of water, rough hillocks of dirt and stretches of sterile clay?

Not according to a plan which is soon to be presented to the county planning commission. State and local agencies have put increasing pressure on the sand and gravel giants to reclaim the pitted land. As a result,, experimentation has already started on revitalizing some areas for agriculture. The deep pits may be used for swimming and fishing or flood control.

In the next century, Stanley Boulevard — which is to be widened to four lanes this year — may become a thoroughfare between acres of crops, past a sprawling regional park. Already, Shadow Cliffs Regional Recreation Area has been created by the East Bay Regional Park District from a huge gravel pit area turned over to EBRPD by Kaiser.

That first park has not been an unqualified success, although a hot

Super Bowl preview for kids

SAN RAMON— "Super Sunday", AKA the Super Bowl matching the Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings, will have a little more meaning for youngsters attending Country Club School.

Parent Jane Hendricks works in the Early Childhood Education program at the school and she suggested last month that hubby Ted come visit third graders of Mara Tompkins.

Which may seem like a routine event until you realize that Ted Hendricks is that super-tall fellow that wears a silver and black uniform while at work and menaces the bad guys carrying a football.

Hendricks brought along his linebacking partner Phil Villapiano and the excitement they engendered will be talked about long after this Sunday's Super Bowl has been forgotten.

Recording the visit of Hendricks and Villapiano were Noel Couglin, a fifth grader who may have a bright future in photography, and darkroom "techicians" Rick Hood and Scott Moulton, sixth graders who also are potential photo "pro's".

Noel is a member of Nick Ragusano's class and Rick and Scott are in Lincoln Olbrycht's class.

A brick for your bathroom

PLEASANTON — The Valley is still in serious trouble with a drought and there are ways that local residents can help conserve water, Vice - mayor Joyce LeClaire told other city council members Monday night.

LeClaire asked the city staff for a report on the feasibility of free city distribution of "plastic bricks" for toilet water closets. The "bricks" are really plastic bags which residents would fill with water and place in the toilet tanks.

The bags would displace a large amount of water, preventing the rush of several gallons into the tank on each flush. It's possible the city could charge a nominal fee for each bag if necessary, said LeClaire.

A special water - conserving shower head is another idea the city should explore, said LeClaire. They are cheap plastic objects which reduce the shower water flow and are cheap enough to distribute free or at nominal cost, said LeClaire.

Residents also could be advised by the mailing of a flyer with the regular city water bill about such water conservation tips as fixing washers on drippy faucets, said LeClaire.

The least the city could do for water conservation is to adjust the sprinkler heads at Amador Community Park so they don't water Black Avenue, said LeClaire.

Council Member William Herlihy said he wants the staff to investigate the cost of heating the Amador Community Park Swimming Pool during the winter with an eye to saving energy. He thought putting a cover over the pool or obtaining a solar hearting unit might effect some energy consumption and cost savings.

County okays unincorporated Bingo

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Dublin and Sunol may corner the market on gambling in the Valley, drawing an exodus of risque revelers from Pleasanton and Livermore.

Bingo is the game, and county country is where it will be played — at least for the moment.

County supervisors voted 4-0 this week to honor the public's November election mandate and authorize Bingo in the unincorporated areas. Applicants for the $30 licenses, however, will have to adhere strictly to criteria laid down by the state's "permissive legislation."

And it is those criteria that are delaying discussion of similar ordinances in the Valley's two cities.

City attorneys Gary Reiners of Livermore and Ken Scheidig in Pleasanton said their respective city councils are waiting for anticipated changes from the State Legislature that would relax the requirements for applicants.

Both attorneys told The Times the state is having second thoughts on strict criteria that eliminate a multitude of local social groups who are technically, if not legally, "non-profit." Current legislation allows only state recognized "tax ex-

VALLEY NEWS BRIEFS

Parness goes to bat

City Manager Bill Parness has filed a formal request with the regional water quality control board to exempt the Unitarian Fellowship from its ban on new sewer hookups. In a letter to the board's executive director, Fred Dierker, Parness noted the church was a quasi - public institution which was located outside city limits and could get a building permit from the county for its expansion plans. Because the congregation includes mostly local residents, Parness said, the assumption was made that they would have little impact on any additional sewage capacity requirements. City council Monday approved delay of various requirements and fees when the church gets its sewer hookup.

Assembly honors Raiders

The State Assembly is honoring the Super Bowl bound Oakland Raiders.

Assemblyman Tom Bates, D-Oakland, introduced a resolution congratulating the American Football Conference champions and wishing them luck in Sunday's game against the Minnesota Vikings.

Bates, a member of the University of California at Berkeley's 1959 Rose Bowl football team, represents part of Oakland and Moraga, and Orinda and Lafayette in Contra Costa.

Dublin land sale OK

AMFAC, Inc., owners of Liberty House department store, won a zoning change from Alameda County Supervisors this week that clears the way for sale of their freeway frontage land in Dublin.

A spokesman for AMFAC said the firm is selling the excess property surrounding its Liberty House store in Dublin. One piece already has been sold, and an additional three-acre site is on the market.

County supervisors yesterday changed the zoning on the nine-acre site at the foot of Golden Gate Avenue from "highway frontage" to "general commercial." The old designation limited development to commerce serving motorists; "general commercial" allows those uses and others.

The firm's representative said AMFAC has a prized sewer permit for the land, and that "lots of people have shown interest" in the property. He would not name those interested, saying prospective buyers were waiting for the zoning change.

Federal jury picks

Three Valley residents are included in the federal grand jury that was sworn in this week in ceremonies at San Francisco.

Barbara J. Roederer and Robert D. Weve, both of Livermore, and Rebecca L. Humphrey of Dublin were among the 23 members of the jury that will operate from a San Francisco base to serve much of Northern California.

The jury's term runs through April 30.

Big basketball action

The fire of the East Bay Athletic League basketball season will heat up early when Livermore and Granada battle in their always hot inter - city rivalry tonight in the Granada gym at 8.

The Mats, who squeaked by Foothill 57-55 in their season opener Wednesday, still remember last year's crushing 66-48 defeat at the hands of th 'Pokes that put an early damper to their title chances.

Livermore, which lost to Monte Vista in a 60-54 heartbreaker in their EBAL openr, finished third behind Amador Valley and Granada in last year's race.

Unbeaten Amador Valley and Monte Vista play in an important contest tonight in Alamo, while Foothill (0-1) travels to Dublin (0-1) and California (0-1) entertains San Ramon (1-0). See details, Page 8 summer day brings out hordes of picnickers and bathers to the shores of the cool blue lake.

Steep - sided cliffs, a treacherous arroyo and irregular terrain behind the lake have lured several visitors to their deaths. At the same time, sandy beaches and good fishing have provided many hours of pleasure for Valley residents.

Besides Shadow Cliffs lake, there are other flooded gravel pits in the area where trespassers have discovered fishing, frogging and motorcycling possibilities. Some of that land may eventually be added to the public recreation area, as the Valley population climb.

Kaiser and Lone Star have enlisted the help of Livermore's Soil Conservation Service staff to analyze the soil in their siltation ponds, to see whether some 800 acres now being used as ponds may some day become farmland.

Conservationist Bob Roan this week gave a report to the county Resource Conservation District on his findings. "Not the nicest stuff you ever saw," he said ironically, showing a rock - hard hunk of clay that had been scooped, wet, out of one of the ponds.

Roan explained that companies washed their gravel and piped the muddy water into a pond, where much of the silt settled out. Then the water was piped into a second pond, where it settled further, and finally into a third pool.

The almost clear water was then recycled back to wash more gravel.

empt" groups to be licensed for for Bingo.

Both said they felt it foolish to write city ordinances now that would have to be amended when the state liberalizes the law.

The county jumped the gun, however. If approved again next week at its second reading, the ordinance will go into effect Feb. 10.

The sheriff's department will administer procedures spelling out conditions for issuance, suspension and revocation of licenses.

Bingo will be banned between 2 a.m. and 10 a.m., and will not be allowed where liquor is served. Games must be open to the general public, and, except for the handicapped, seats may not be reserved.

The board's legal advisor told them current legislation limits licenses to tax exempt groups who either own the building where Bingo will be played, hold a long term lease, or have their offices there. "And that," said Dick Moore, "pretty much limits it to churches."

It is those strict standards the State Legislature is trying to amend.

However, Bingo is not new to the unincorporated area of Alameda County nor is it new to many areas or organizations throughout California. The game has being played quite openly for years by churches, veterans organizations, senior citizen groups and others while authorities looked the other way.

Ridge plan wins county green light

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Carl Nipper has gained a cautious green light from county supervisors for his proposed "Rancho Sunol Estates" on the Pleasanton Ridge.

Stymied for a month by conflicting memories among board members, he ecked out a bare three vote majority this week allowing him to proceed with plans for his 96 home development overlooking Sunol.

Supervisor Joseph Bort, the key vote in the decision, said this week's resolution would allow Nipper to plan for use on about two-thirds of his finger of land extending North from the town. "That would allow him to submit — and I underline submit — his proposal," said Bort.

Final approval would depend on sewer service and eventual annexation to Pleasanton.

County supervisors had argued bitterly over their intent in a more than two-year-old boundry decision that limited the amount of land Nipper could develop. Tapes of the decisive meeting were destroyed a few months ago.

Former supervisor John Murphy claimed the board had been mislead into severly restricting the usable acreage. But Bort claimed the original motion was his and that his intent was "clearly to preserve the ridgelands."

Bort compromised on what he believes to be the original motion, and this week voted to extend the developable land "up to one more ridge. But not up to the top of the ridge."

He was joined by board chairman Charles Santana and supervisor Fred Cooper. Valerie Raymond, sworn into office earlier that morning, voted against the motion. John George of Oakland abstained.

Preserve Area Ridgelands Committee (PARC) spokeswoman Margaret Tracey said she was "shocked" because "so much (ridgeland) is allowed for development." She said the board "should not support speculation in land."

Nipper wants to develop 96 large, lofty homesites on the hill. Facing pressure from Sunol residents and problems with an acceptable sewer treatment plant, he gradually has retreated from an original proposal of some 600 homes.

Raymond made a separate motion that clears the air over Nipper's neighboring Kilkare Woods.

State board says recycle water

The state Water Rsources Control Board yesterday unanimously voted to promote the use of water reclamation throughout the state with increased research and additional funds.

The action is intended to reclaim water through sewage treatment programs and encourage people to use that water. A board spokesman estimated the program could provide up to 2.4 million acre-feet in additional reclaimed water by the year 2000.

While it would immediately provide some water to aid drought - stricken areas, officials said the program was intended as a long-rage plan.

Fred H. Dierker, executive officer for the Regional Water Quality Control Board, yesterday said he thought the program would not have a great impact on the Valley's current sewage disposal crisis.

The Valley is presently operating under a ban on additional sewage connections. A proposal to build a 22-mile pipeline to transport the treated wastewater to San Francisco Bay was defeated by voters in November.

Major opposition on the pipeline focused on whether local officials were ignoring water reclamation proposals to solve the problem.

One provision of the program passed yesterday would emphasize the use of grant money to develop more facilities to reclaim water for agricultural, recreational or industrial use. But Dierker said that although the plan is effective immediately, it would have no ffect on the disposal issue if the pipline was still determined to be the most cost - effective method of getting rid of effluent.

"I don't see how it will affect which proposal is determined to be the most cost - effective," he said.

If the pipeline was constructed and the Valley needed more capacity afterwards, reclaiming water through the line would effectively achieve that goal, he said.

But if grant conditions remain as they are now, it is unlikely extra capacity could be used for anything except residential growth. Current guidelines prohibit using federal or state monies for capacity to attract future industrial users, which is what local officials have sought.

Livermore man hurt

WALNUT CREEK — A Livermore man sustained minor injuries Wednesday when his car struck a vehicle disabled only minutes earlier from another collision, highway patrol officials reported.

Officers said a car driven by Joseph Allen Breschears, 21, of 909 Rosanne St. in Livermore struck a car which had first been involved in a three-car accident on Interstate 680 near the North Main Street exchange.

Breschears was treated for minor injuries at John Muir Hospital and released. The driver of the other car, Norbert Feliciano, 22, of Pittsburg, was reportedly injured but not hospitalized.

The accident is under investigation.

Facelift on Main St.

SAN RAMON — Mary Carr, age nine, will be appearing on The MTWTF Evening Show Jan. 26, 7:30 on KPIX Channel 5 as a result of winning first place in the Young Miss Division of the Miss California Universe Junior Pageant last October.

The pageant was held in Southern California at Buena Park Convention Center.

There were 33 contestants entered in Mary's division. Decisions were based on basic beauty, poise, personality. The ability to project charm and grace in front of the judges and on the ramp also counted in the judge's verdicts.

Mary will be attending the Miss California Universe Pageant Feb. 14 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. She will be participating in a skit at the event but will not be entered in the competition which is for older girls.

The February pageant will be televised on Channel 5 at 8 p.m. on the 14th.

Steve Fox and Muldoon Cerri from KPIX Channel 5 interviewed Mary yesterday.

Pleasanton negotiations continue informally

PLEASANTON— Negotiations between Pleasanton Joint School District teacher and administration representatives are continuing on an informal basis as the two sides head for fact-finding.

Teachers unit president Tom Zach said some progress has been made, particularly on binding arbitration of grievances, though no formal mediation session has been held since before Christmas.

Still at issue, also, are step and column increases on the salary schedule, extra duty hours, assignment and transfer policy, and evaluation of teachers.

The request for fact - finding was submitted to the Educational Employment Relations Board (EERB) the last week of 1976.

When the three - person fact - finding panel convenes later this month, it will be composed of one person appointed by the EERB, a teacher rep and an administration rep.

Zach indicated Thursday Pleasanton teachers would request a representative from the California Teachers Association (CTA) ... someone whom, Zach says, would have particular expertise in contract language.

He said another mediation session might be held in a week to two weeks, depending on when the fact - finding panel might be convened.

Brown pledges school aid without tax increase

SACRAMENTO — Governor Emund G. Brown, Jr. pledged on Thursday to reform school finance, increase state aid for local schools "without a tax increase" and still bring about tax relief to the property owner.

In his brief State of the State address to the Legislature, Brown included firm words, but few details, on two of the hottest finance items facing his government this year.

"Obviously, No. 1 on the agenda is property tax.," he told the joint Legislative session. "We need an immediate solution. We also need a long - term solution. I propose we make available something under half a billion for property tax relief, directing it to those most in need."

Brown also mentioned relief for renters, repeating the pledge to "take some of the money and make it available to those who need it most."

He proposed a new statuatory limit on property tax rates and property assessments.

Responding to recent Supreme Court rulings calling for equalization of all tax support for public education by 1980, Brown said school finance reform and increased state aid for local schools could be accomplished without a tax increase, a promise many legislators have said might be impossible to keep.

Spliting the property tax rolls so that different rates can be assessed against homeowners and business is a one method Brown says he supports.

"We have the resources, the revenues without new taxes to provide a response to the court mandate", on school finance equalization, the governor asserted.

Look at hot lunch program

The hot lunch program progress report on Early Childhood Education and implementation of Title IX will be discussed at the next meeting of the Murray Parent/ Administrative Council Thursday, Jan. 13.

Teacher reps stage strike

Amador - Pleasanton Chapter 155 of the California School Employees Association received word earlier this week that administrators in the parent organization, based in San Jose, have gone on strike.

Wanda Robison, chapter officer and food services technician for the districts, said members of Associated Employees California School Employees Association (AECSEA) struck Monday, listing salary demands for their walkout.

Affect on local CSEA chapters is to at least temporarily take away state office representatives. Amador and Pleasanton district classified employes have been assisted by Betty Boykin.

The local CSEA leadership recently filed an unfair labor practice suit, through the San Jose office, against the administration of the Amador and Plesanton districts.

Chapter 155 alleges the freezing of salaries by the school boards last summer constitutes an unfair labor practice.

New library almost ready

PLEASANTON— The long - planned building of a library addition at Amador Valley High School is nearly completed and student and staff occupancy of the new area is expected within 10 days.

Square footage of the new area is 3,350, about one-third the size of the present library.

Base cost of the addition is $158,946. The district approved addition of cabinets costing $8,700 and recarpeting of the old area (to match carpeting in the new) at a cost of $5,200.

Construction by Pet Hodgson Construction Co. of Redwood City began the first week of August and was scheduled to be completed Jan. 5. An extension of construction time was necessitated due to three days of rain and the addition of cabinets.

Pat Sather is librarian at Amador Valley High School.

A California first

Sue Bergmans ordained Episcopal priest

PLEASANTON — The audience is joyous and talkative in anticipation of the historic event on this Epiphany Eve as Sue Bergmans is about to become the first woman in California to be ordained an Episcopal priest.

St. Clare's Episcopal Church on Rose Avenue is a small church and has a mellowness about its walls which comes with the processes of age. The mural above the altar is lettered with the declaration "Blessed is His Kingdom now and forever. Amen. Alleluia, Love, Joy, Peace." and "Clare" and "Francis" for the saints who are represented on the mural along with two angels and the figure of the three headed Trinity, with a white dove in the hands of Christ.

The group of musicians to the right of the altar is composed of a guitarist and banjoist, among others, who have started playing some very easy-going music, the kind you might hear at a folk festival, "I love you, Brothers and Sisters, I love you."

The pink carnations and white baby's breath bouquets on the mantel in brass vases, the tall brass candelabras, the American flag to the left of the altar, the Rev. William A. Smith, in his clerical vestments, bowing to the altar in passing, the white altar cloth decorated with a red triangle containing a cross and a flame, all add to the festiveness of the occasion.

As the time comes for the procession to begin, the conversation dies down. A guest book is passed around for everyone to sign. Two pretty little girls in blue vestments with white mantles over them come forward with long brass candle-lighters and light the altar candles.

The entrance procession begins. The visiting clergymen, and the presenter, in their colorful vestments, the bishop, the Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers in his red embroidered cape and his tall pointed golden crown, Sue Bergmans, the Ordinand, in her white gown and leather sandals, a white rope around her waist, come through the crowded aisle of the little church, and the ceremony begins.

The whole congregation takes part by singing and responding to the Bishop's words. His voice conveys great wisdom and the grandeur of godliness. The ceremony proceeds with the Bishop asking the presenters, the Rev. Smith of St. Clare's, the Rev. Robert Tsu, Ralph Calabrese, Senior Warden of the Church, and Margaret Russell, Head Nurse of Tamalpais Hospital in Marin County, where Sue Bergmans is a nurse, whether Susan Bergmans has satisfied the requirements of the canons, and if she is qualified.

The Presenters respond affirmatively, and the Bishop then questions the Ordinand if she will be loyal to the doctrine, discipline and worship of Christ as this Church has received them.

Susan Bergmans answers in a clear and steady voice that she is willing and ready to do so.

The people all stand and the Bishop addresses the people and asks them if anyone objects to this ordination. At first, it seems no one objects. But then several voices rise above the others shouting "No. No." Then a voice stands out above the others shouting, "No, we cannot and will not recognize this ordination..." It is a tall, dark man. He speaks at length, calling it "heretical action" and "We ask that this ordination be stopped ...to prevent fraud from being committed on the Body of God."

He further states in a loud voice that "Women undergoing such an ordination will NOT be ordained." He makes a long prepared statement. He speaks of the schism being created by this action, and he calls "on all Catholic Christians to withdraw...to show unswerving loyalty to Jesus."

Then the Bishop answers patiently that the Church has weighed and examined her readiness, that they have prayerfully, even painfully deliberated, that they are following their conscience, and "in Christ, there is no higher God."

The Bishop's voice rises and falls with great dignity as he states that "I've invited everyone here to discuss ... (this matter) with me... but this is not the time ... for now we will proceed with this ordination."

At this point the protestors, led by their spokesman, identified as the Rev. G.D. Wiebe, who said he was a Roman Catholic priest and secretary of Our Lady of Victory Chapter of the Society of the Sacred Cross, get up and leave the hall. It appears they comprise about one fourth of the audience. After they leave, people who were waiting outside because there were no seats come in and fill up the pews. It is still very crowded, and the ceremony continues.

The Bishop asks the people if they will uphold Susan in her ministry. "WE WILL!" The strength of their response is impressive. After much singing, praying and verbal interchange between Bishop and people, the clergy place their hands upon the head of the kneeling Susan Bergmans and she is duly ordained.

It is Epiphany Eve, the night commemorating the coming of the Wisemen with gifts for the Christ Child. The Rev. Susan Bergmans offers her life to His service on this night.

Historical site

The simple structure on Rose Avenue in which the Rev. Susan Bergmans gained her precedent - setting rites of priesthood, is not without its own history.

Once the "Legion Hall" for Pleasanton's World War I veterans, the building was later acquired by St. Augustine's Catholic Church to serve for several decades as the "social hall" and school of religion for that congregation.

When St. Augustine's Parish moved into a new edifice some ten years ago, the vacated social hall was leased by the Diocese of Oakland to St. Clare's Episcopal Church, and has served that congregation pending development of a permanent house of worship on Hopyard Road in Pleasanton.

Picked up runaways win new rights in housing

MARTINEZ — Unmanageable or runaway youths will not automatically be carted off to juvenile hall anymore due to Assembly Bill 3121 which became effective Jan. 1, 1977.

If they wish, they may stay in a special "non-secure" wing of the hall separated from young people being held for criminal charges. Or they may be sent to an emergency foster home. But they cannot be locked in or required to stay.

Before they are taken anywhere, they will be referred to a local family crisis counseling center.

County Probation Officer, John Davis said the intent of the new bill is to prevent locking such youths together with those being held for criminal matters. It provides and aid to families related to these minor offenders by giving them a chance to resolve their problems before they become more serious.

The counseling service is not new but the new legislation expands its use. A $300,000 federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant will allow the department to more than double the counseling staffs' size. It will go from nine to 19 persons.

These counselors will try to help ease family tensions and bring parents and children together. Parents will be encouraged to call counseling centers directly rather than contacting police.

Police officers have been instructed to make every effort to direct non-criminal cases to one of the area offices rather than transport these youngsters to juvenile hall.

The hope is the new law may spur parents to try to resolve disputes with their children instead of holding the threat of juvenile hall over their heads.

Two counseling centers are located in Concord at 1810-D Willow Pass Road (825-7440) and Antioch at 213 G. St. (754-3700.) They will be open from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Saturday.

A third center at 10972 San Pablo Ave. in El Cerrito (233-7080, ext. 3301) will be open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Juvenile hall intake (372-4751) will handle such cases on Sunday and during late night hours.

Forty beds will be available to those youths who need to get away from their homes until their problems are worked out. Twenty beds will be in the unlocked wing in juvenile hall and 20 will be in special foster homes.

The board of supervisors authorized the extra foster home beds but county officials are concerned about getting the homes ready. The new law comes at a time when foster homes are hard to find. More mothers are working and not many families want to take on the problems of troubled teenagers.

Families interested in becoming licensed foster homes are encouraged to call the local Social Service licensing unit: Pleasant Hill, 944-3026; Pittsburg, 439-4428; Richmond, 222-0330.

Another effect of the new law will be that juveniles 16 and 17 years old charged with certain serious crimes can be tried in regular adult courts with juries. It requires the district attorney to become involved in court hearings in these cases.

Another federal grant, for $90,576, will provide extra staff for the district attorney, public defender and probation officer. This will help them handle the added workload and provide startup costs for the new housing arrangements.

VMH offering new lung problem service

LIVERMORE — People with lung problems will be receiving better diagnosis than ever at Valley Memorial Hospital, thanks to a new pulmonary function laboratory just acquired and a specialist who is adding his skills to the VMH medical staff.

According to Barry Westling, chief respiratory therapist, the pulmonary function testing equipment previously used did not have the wide range of capabilities of the new machines and did not provide as much information.

The new equipment, a pneumtach and an X - Y recorder, can serve as an early warning of emphysema, asthma, bronchitis and other lung problems. It can even detect tumors in the lungs.

Among its capabilies it can measure the speed of air flow and the quantity of air in the lungs. A graphic picture is provided of the volumes and flow rates. Test results are displayed in lighted numerals and on graph print - outs.

The machine is portable and may be taken to patients' bedsides.

A pulmonary specialist serves as consultant for the department and interprets the test which staff therapists administer to patients who have or are suspecting of suffering from lung diseases.

NWPC strengthens women in politics

By JEAN McKENNA

After the November '76 elections which saw Valerie Raymond elected a supervisor of Alameda County and Felice Tannenbaum elected to Eden Hospital's board of directors, the National Women's Political Caucus (NWPC) will take a "breather" and reassess its political action policies.

Chili Barlow of Pleasanton, who played a key role as manager of Raymond's election campaign, has been chosen to lead the South County branch of NWPC as a "co-chair" 1977.

The NWPC is a national, multi-partisan organization formed to mobilize the political potential of women who represent 54 per cent of the voting population in this country. It is dedicated to raising women's issues in every campaign at all levels of government, electing women to public office, teaching women how to be politically effective, and using the ballot to elect people sensitive to the concerns of women.

The NWPC is the only major women's organization which endorses candidates (League of Women Voters is non-partisan), and its decisions now carry considerable political clout from the national level right down to grassroots elections in Alameda County.

In the off-election year of 1977, Chili sees instructing women to be more effective as the most important task of her organization. The local chapter of NWPC is planning workshops on political action which will appeal to a wide spectrum of women — from voters, to party workers, campaign managers and candidates. Additional "Women in Power" forums, such as the one held in the valley last year, will bring together politically experienced women in lively panel discussions for the public.

NWPC is also setting up a talent bank of women eligible and willing to serve on county commissions and boards, or regional and state agencies. It will work actively to foster nomination and appointment of women to such politically influential positions, according to Chili.

Since "politics is made of money," the NWPC will also organize fund-raisers so that in the next election it can back the candidates it has endorsed with financial assistance.

CHILI BARLOW

A thorny problem, yet to be resolved by NWPC, is whether to endorse candidates because they are women, or because they are sensitive to women's issues. Does a female candidate win endorsement over a more competent male who supports women's concerns?

That question and other tasks, such as identifying potential candidates, attracting minority women to the caucus, and hosting the upcoming state and national conventions in 1977, are on the agenda for the chapter's first meeting of the year. NWPC convenes Monday, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at West Coast Federal Savings, 1030 La Plaza Dr., Hayward.

The 60-member caucus, only a year and a half old, is still in the formative stages and welcomes women of all backgrounds to its monthly meetings at locations throughout Southern Alameda County. For information contact Chili at 846-2530.

Evening with Anthropos

Jill Kidd will be describing "The Wizard Within" Wednesday, Jan. 12 for Evening with Anthropos at 1814 Catalina Court, Livermore, from 8 to 10 p.m. The wizard within is that elusive being that is us.

She will describe ways to "hear" our wizard speaking to us and ways to encourage the voice to speak louder. Interspersed with her talk will be music from Broadway's "The Wiz," a play that centers on the power of the wizard within. There will be a $2 fee.

An all-around artist who is accomplished in ceramics, sculpting and making jewelry will be guest speaker at the Tuesday, Jan. 11 meeting of the Valley Artists. Stan Wacholtz, a resident of San Jose, will demonstrate painting techniques with acrylics.

The meeting will be held in the Fredricksen Elementary School, Jamara

PWC

Sue Johnson will give a talk entitled "Planties and Bloomers" at the Pleasanton Women's Club meeting to be held Tuesday, Jan. 11 at 11 a.m. at the clubhouse, 4133 Regalia Ave. Bring a sandwich. Coffee and dessert will be served.

Fired teacher

The efforts by one school district within this Valley to discharge a teacher found to be incompetent is an item to be shared with all those concered with quality education in the public schools.

Without attempting here to determine the guilt or innocence of one music teacher on the Amador Valley High School staff, it is still important to note that for very close to one year that school's governing board — the elected representatives of the people — have been trying to terminate that teacher.

And the case is not yet at an end. Even after a series of hearings and findings as set forth by state code to protect the teacher's rights, there still remains the opportunity for a full judicial test of all those prior hearings, and even of the school board's "right" to exercise such authority.

Nor is this a unique case. Livermore Unified School District went through a very traumatic "teacher experience" covering some two years; San Ramon and Murray school boards have had long and difficult challenges to their authority.

Even when the question is simply a matter of a district's refusal to renew the contract of a tenured teacher — regardless of the reasons — the same lengthy series of hearings, fact - finding and court trials is still available to that instructor. And all that while that teacher remains on the district's payroll, usually with an active instructional role.

There is something much more at stake here than one individual's claim to a job and a career. We wonder at what point the community's right to assert its own standards — through its elected board !nters into the picture? Given the State Supreme Court's recent order removing community wealth as a basis for financing public schools, the people and the parents might begin to ask just what rights they have in once a child is turned over to state - controlled educational systems.

Rev. Bergmans

The nation - wide attention focused on the ordination of Susan Bergmans to be priest of the Episcopal Church was a moment of great triumph for some, and serious objection for others.

We would prefer to share with Rev. Bergmans and her followers the joy of that occasion, observing that — in the long history of Christianity's struggle for acceptance — the most significant gains have been made against a background of others' uncertainty.

St. Clare's Episcopal Church is of itself a modest beginning in the rites of that centuries - old faith; and Pleasanton was a humble setting to which Bishop Kilmar Myers and other renowned leaders of the faith came in order to share this momentous occasion ... along with the press and television camera people.

It is also noteworthy that the building in which all this took place was not one of the fine cathedrals of Episcopalian claim, but rather a modest wood - frame and stucco structure being leased temporarily by St. Clare's Parish from, of all people, the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Diocese of Oakland!

The significance of that bit of inter - faith leasing will not be lost on those who see Catholics and Episcopalians as leaders in a world crying out for ecumenical understanding.

So too does the modest setting for this first - ever ordination of a woman to the priesthood stir historic recollection. We will all recall the story of that other religious rebel's arrival, in the barest of places, into a world that was never certain, often unkind, but eternally grateful for the example that has guided Christian strength throughout the centuries.

We could wish for Rev. Susan Bergmans no finer standard for her own priesthood than she follow with peace and humility His example.

Take my wif — er, what's that?

Oh. Hello. We were just sitting around here rehearsing some lines for a big night that's coming up.

Ten or 20 of us plan to attend the Henny Youngman show in two weeks at San Francisco's Boarding House. It turns out one of the group is a friend of Henny's, and he's arranged a dinner get together. So we want to be ready with some fresh material.

Actually it could be the highlight of my whole life. Never have I wanted to do anything as much as share a table with Henny Youngman. Well, almost. I'd rather be married to John Wayne — but that's impossible with the age difference and all.

Everyone of us is nervous about our dinner date with a Jewish legend. The only Jewish person I ever ate with was a bicycle-rickshaw driver in Honolulu. His favorite dish was Kailua Pig.

I wonder if Henny likes Chinese?

In any event, the menu is planned. We'll all be served a bowl of soup with a fly in it. The flies will be synchronized swimmers, however, instead of backstrokers. If we update the joke, Henny might not recognize it.

His appearance in San Francisco is being called the booking gamble of all time. The Boarding House is quite hip in its brand of entertainment. Henny Youngman, however, is as current as Burma Shave.

If you don't know about Henny Youngman, (most people under 70 don't) he's the king of the one liners. He goes back a long way. In fact, when he started out, the joke went like this: IN ANCIENT Rome a senator came down the steps of the Forum and said to a slave, "Call me a chariot." "Very well sir," said the slave, "you're a chariot."

On one radio broadcast Henny Youngman fired off 100 gags in 10 minutes. Or was that 100 people who gagged on 10 of his jokes in a minute and a half? I forget.

Anyway, he's the man with a scatter-gun delivery. He patterns himself on some advice forwarded by Walter Winchell. "People don't get bored if you change the subject often enough." Trouble is, Henny changes the subject before he gets to the predicate.

For instance, he commented once on a big crowd at his performance. "The subway's so crowded ," he said, "that even the men are standing. "I saw an empty seat, but I'm a gentleman. I pointed it out to a lady. Then I raced her for it."

Henny Youngman started out as a printer. Later he published a book. The printing was good. Henny did the writing.

Which reminds me of a joke. A guy lost his wallet in the middle of the block and went to look for it on the corner because the light was better.

The gag was stolen from Henny Youngman — which is okay because he stole all his jokes. Got them from a guy who carried a golf club and entertained the troops. The guy would start his routine with: "It's nice to be here in Valley Forge."

As you can see, it's not easy to write a joke, or a book, or anything for that matter. Take my column — Please.

FOCUS/Consumer aid

New state law

Dawn of the New Year brought a stack of new laws, most focusing on consumer protection, the environment, crime and schools.

One of the more prolific writers of new laws was Sen. John Holmdahl, who represents a portion of the Valley.

Fellow senate members John A. Nejedly of Walnut Creek and Daniel E. Boatwright of Concord, whose representation areas include San Ramon, also had bills which became law Jan. 1.

What is perhaps more significant is the fact that an arbitrary list of SOME of the new laws was compiled and released to the media statewide by the office of Evelle J. Younger, state Attorney General.

This could be another indication that Younger plans on going after Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. a year hence.

After four of the criminal justice laws, Younger's office notes he "actively supported the laws cited."

They include Negedly's criminal sentencing law, enacting a determinate sentencing law that becomes effective July 1; probation: previous convictions, written by Holmdahl and prohibiting parole for persons convicted of two serious crimes; juenile court law, by Assemblyman Julian Dixon, which substantially reforms the juvenile justice system, and one dealing with theft of retail merchandise.

The latter increases the penalty for shoplifting and allows a merchant to detain a person for specified purposes if the merchant acts reasonably and has probable cause to believe the person is attempting to steal or has stolen merchandise from the premises. The bill was written by Sen. Newton R. Russell of Glendale.

Another new law in the criminal justice venue concerns crimes of punishment and torture. Under the terms of Assemblyman John T. Knox's bill, life imprisonment without the possibility of parole would be required in cases of first degree murder by torture with intent to kill.

The greatest number of new laws cited by Younger come under consumer protection.

One by Boatwright deals with cancellation notices on credit cards.

It requires that a credit card holder be given a 30-day written notice by the card issuer of its intention to cancel, unless such card holder is in default of payment.

The other significant new laws in this area are:

DISCOUNT BUYING SERVICES— Regulates organizations which provide their clients the right to obtain goods or services at discount prices (Assemblymen Z'berg and Fazio).

CREDIT INSTALLMENT CONTRACTS — Makes the Unruh Act applicable to credit installment contracts where such transactions involve both California and out-ofstate contracts (Sen. Rains).

BREAD — Defines a "standard small loaf" of bread as a load weighing 8 ounces, and allows any bakery to bake and sell on the premises loaves of bread which weigh less than 8 ounces (Assemblyman Siegler).

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE — Prohibits telephone companies from charging for directory assistance (Assemblyman Robinson).

PRESCRIPTION DRUG ADS — Permits the advertisement of prescription drugs under specified circumstances (Assemblyman Robinson).

Some of the other new laws deal with coastal resources, open space and recreation, personal income tax returns, licensing of massage parlors, minors, and cessation of medical care for terminal patients.

The latter enacts the National Death Act, authorizing withholding of life support systems from adults afflicted with terminal illnesses if the patient has so directed. It was written by Assemblyman Barry Keene of Eureka.

Nobody knows

I thought I was just slightly ahead of my time when I suggested that Pleasanton should consider limiting shopping centers because too many of them in one area can drive one of them broke, leaving an ugly abandoned shopping center for the neighbors to drive past daily.

Since writing that a couple of weeks ago, I have learned that Livermore beat me to the punch. Its citizens have adopted a plank on that very question in their general plan. To wit, a Livermore neighborhood shopping center in the future must be located at least one mile from existing neighborhood centers and serve a trade area of 5,000 to 10,000 people. It should be located in a place so that people can walk to it conveniently, a concession to those under 15 and over 60 who don't fit in with the suburban convention of having one auto for each foot.

Pleasanton would not have to go through the general plan process to adopt the same policy. The city council could put it in the zoning ordinance, after the proper public hearing procedures, and it would stand up in court, according to Deputy City Attorney Harvey Levine. Since the upholding of the SAVE initiative, it's clear people could also enact it in the zoning ordinance through the initiative process, if they cared enough about it.

I don't necessarily advocate its adoption, though. I don't think all the returns are in yet, which highlights a problem with city planning departments. So far, at the direction of their bosses, the planning commissions and city councils, planning departments have not done the deep market research needed to predict the success or failure of a shopping center. Local government traditionally says that it just looks at land use and can't interfere with a free market, even though free markets only exist in people's dreams these days.

What brought on all this discussion is the proposal for Oak Tree Center, which the Pleasanton City Council will examine next Monday night. The center would be built at Hopyard Road and Valley Avenue, right across the street from the Alpha Beta Center. Small merchants in the center are afraid that Oak Tree's expected (though not announced) major food store might drive Alpha Beta out of business and the small merchants would lose their major foot traffic magnet. They may be right, and if they are the Alpha Beta Center could become an ugly white elephant for the community.

On the other hand, they may be wrong. Building the Oak Tree Center might draw more shoppers to the intersection of Hopyard Road and Valley Avenue, making it more of a magnet for both shopping centers. It appears this may be happening over on Santa Rita Road and Valley Avenue where Valley Plaza was built across the street from the Amador Shopping Center. That area now seems to be drawing enough cars to rival the downtown — which is just what supporters of a strong downtown argued when Valley Plaza was applying for its zoning a few years ago.

The thing which stands out is that no one really knows for sure. Very few merchants do their own market surveys; they just moan when business is bad and perk up when it's good. What's really needed is more information and maybe the planning departments in the valley can find some low cost way of getting detailed, accurate information about how healthy the local climate is for business and what kind of planning decisions have to be made to insure good business and continued good aesthetics. — by Ron McNicoll

Bus shelters

Editor, The Times:

A recent editorial sought passenger shelters and benches at Valley bus stops. Good news — they're coming! Under a federal grant with local TDA funding, 30 shelters have been approved for BART express bus routes. A number of these will be on the U and D lines.

Months ago I suggest a list of sites based on these priorities: 1. Transfer points. 2. Stops serving two or more routes. 3. Stops on all-day routes. 4. Stops serving single routes in peak hours only. Within each group I gave priority to stops with higher usage.

BART and AC staff have evaluated my list, contacting cities, the counties (for sites outside city limits), and owners of affected private property. Shelter installation should proceed soon, once the necessary arrangements are made. Negotiations are underway for passenger shelters at 13 sites on the U and D lines connecting the Valley to BART stations in Hayward, Bay Fair, and Walnut Creek.

These shelters are attractive and well designed; patrons find them great convenience. If treated with reasonable care, they should serve the public well for many years.

Waste water film

Editor, The Times:

Waste Water Bonanza, a film produced for the U.S. Army Engineers was sponsored by the CARD Committee for public showing at the Pleasanton Hotel on Dec. 28 at 7:30 p.m. It is a tragedy that only about 80 valley residents came to see this remarkable documentary which demonstrated how barren land can become an oasis with the use of this reclaimed sewage effluent ...

One couldn't help being inspired by the luxurious field crops that were shown produced by the natural fertilizers contained in otherwise waste water. This was a demonstration of organic farming at its best. There were large lakes where water birds flourished, people went fishing, boating, water skiing and swimming in reclaimed water rendered crystal clear. The public notion about the use of water that otherwise becomes a costly nuisance could not help being changed for the better by viewing this film.

But other things became "Crystal Clear" when only one member of the LAVWMA Board showed up aftpr being personally invited. This board has asked the public to submit proposals for the disposition of sewage effluent to be evaluated by the board as alternatives to the pipe over the hill. This lack of interest in an undertaking by a citizen group to stimulate public interest gives one cause to wonder just what to expect from this public agency. Is their only answer to this very important public problem to throw more public money at the problem ...

Hundreds of Cental California Cities and thousands throughout this great country have no alternative to using this valuable resource to grow crops and produce revenue, why then are we so different?

Livermore Marathon

Editor, The Times:

Through a gross oversight on my part, I failed to thank the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory Recreation Association (LLLRA) for their invaluable assistance with the Third Livermore Marathon. The LLLRA provided building facilities for registration, dressing rooms and toilets as well as funds for awards and T-shirts.

I also wish to thank Sandia Laboratory for use of their parking lot on East Avenue. Without the support of these organizations it would have been impossible to put on this event.

round the town

It is now clear that this nation is confronted with a crisis in the transition of office from one president to another.

Oh sure, you've been reading about how Betty and Gerald have been so gracious to Jimmy and Rosalynn for the last several weeks. The problem, I am informed, is not in getting the new president into the White House, it is rather how to convince the outgoing president that he no longer holds that office!

I can now reveal that the CIA, the FBI and the GAO have been secretly preparing a report dealing with President Ford's last few weeks in office. My contact, G. Farnsworth "Squeaky Clean" Electrolux is a member of that special commission.

"It's 'Transitional Trauma' pure and simple," G. Farnsworth informed me. "The symptoms were there when President Eisenhower was to cool to Mr. Kennedy in January of 1961; and we couldn't quite get a handle on it when President Truman refused to ride with Mr. Eisenhower during the inaugural parade of 1953. But the signs were there, nonetheless."

But, I insisted, the nation has been assured that President Ford and Governor Carter are carrying out the smoothest presidential transition in our nation's history!

"Only on the surface, old boy," G. Farnsworth told me. "Our report reveals that an incumbent president has always had great difficulty handing over his duties to a successor ... after all, this nation has had such little practice on that score."

What are the symptoms of Transitional Trauma, I asked.

"President Ford goes off to Vail for an apparent carefree weekend with his family. But right in the middle of his Stem Christie down K 44, Mr. Ford announces he wants immediate state - hood for Puerto Rico! Now, is that the act of a man in normal transition?" Farnsworth demanded.

Could he have bumped his presidential head during a final fling at a presidential slalom?

"That could be," G. Farnsworth acknowledged, "but how would you explain Mr. Ford's sudden determination ... also announced at Vail ... to lift price controls on gasoline?"

I reminded G. Farnsworth the president has always contended price controls kept gasoline in short supply, and that the presidential jet had a terrrible time finding sufficient fuel at Vail Municipal Airport for the return flight to Washington.

"That ould hardly account for President Ford's inexplicable invitation to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to share the presidential box at the Super Bowl," G. Farnsworth said, with genuine dismay. (I was later to learn that G. Farnsworth Electrolux was himself unable to get tickets to the Super Bowl, and this could have influenced his report on Transitional Trauma. But that's another story.)

"Then there is the matter of that late - December snow fall in Vail at a time when all of the western states were experiencing their worst drought in a century," G. Farnsworth said, bitterly, "but perhaps I should not be telling you ...."

What? What!? If the outgoing president of these United States was using his office to influence the nation's climate, then my readers have the right to know, I insisted!

"Well," G. Farnsworth said, reluctantly, "we have learned on good authority that President Ford summoned his chief climatologist, the board of directors for National Georgraphic and Peter Sellers, all for a hush - hush meeting JUST ONE WEEK before the Ford party was to leave for a skiing vacation at Vail .... AND when Vail had no snow whatsoever!"

And by the time the Ford party had arrived at Vail, Vail?

"SNOW! Beautiful snow," G. Farnsworth exclaimed. "The first in the west. And we have also determined that a heavy rainfall predicted for Southern California (in Reagan Ranch country) that same week suddenly disappeared..."

With all this evidence, will the special commission on Transitional Trauma make any recommendation to avoid future occurrence of this terrible disease?

"Yes," G. Farnsworth said, "we are recommending that all incoming presidents be injected with a special vaccine as they take office. It would last for exactly three years and eleven months, after which the incumbent would lose all lust for power, all dreams of glory, and all thought of selling his memoirs for five million bucks."

That's pretty potent vaccine, I suggested.

"Yes," G. Farnsworth agreed, "but it's the very least we can do to remove those delusions of presidential power held by our outgoing presidents."

"Remember when we used to be able to say 'That and a DIME will buy you a cup of coffee'?"

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My father, age 83, was hospitalized for a week for tests. He had been losing weight — about two to three pounds per month for the past eight months and complained of not having an appetite.

The physicians diagnosed a hiatal hernia. The doctor did a biopsy on some tissue near the top of the stomach, and the result was "non-confirmatory." The doctor said the tissue was very likely inflamed due to the acid that keeps working up into the area.

Is the loss of appetite characteristic of a hiatal hernia? What can be done to stimulate the appetite if anything? He has been forcing himself to eat and has gained back almost 10 pounds in less than two months. He is still strong and works around the house. The doctor said not to worry about his weight loss as he was overweight 30 to 35 pounds to start with.

Just before my father started to lose weight he was under a severe emotional stress because my mother was ill. Since then she has recovered.

DEAR READER — I would urge anyone with unexplained weight loss to have a medical examination. It is sometimes an important sign of cancer. That is why your doctor did such a complete examination. The tissue studies show that your father did not have a cancer of the stomach area.

Weight loss follows the same laws as weight gain. If a person doesn't eat enough for any reason to meet the daily calorie needs of his body he will lose weight.

Cancer and many infectious illnesses increase the body's use of calories and cause weight loss. So will an overactive thyroid gland. Your father apparently did not have an increased use of calories but just quit eating enough.

A loss of appetite is a signal that the individual has an emotional problem. Depression at any age will decrease a person's appetite. When there is no obvious explanation for loss of appetite related to some disease of the digestive tract, the possibility of a depression must be considered.

No, a hiatal hernia does not usually result in loss of appetite. Many an overweight person with hiatal hernia no doubt wished it did. Most hiatal hernias present no symptoms. When they do, the symptoms are usually of acid indigestion. A common complaint is burning in the pit of the stomach.

The burning pain is caused by regurgitation of acid-digestive juices into the lower esophagus. If the doctor took his tissue sample from here, he may have been talking about inflammation caused by the acid contents of the stomach leaking into the lower esophagus.

In the rest of your letter you commented on your father taking antacids. They help to prevent the burning problem caused by too much acid digestive juice. There is a lot more to managing a hiatal hernia than just medicine. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflex, to give you more information on how daily living habits can be altered to help prevent symptoms. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Most people blame a moth known as the "clothes moth" for making the moth holes in woolen clothes and carpets.

Unlike the moths, or "millers," that flit around a light and which probably do no harm, the clothes moth hides in dark places and flies very little.

It is not the adult, but the little caterpillars from which the moths come, that eat holes in woolen things.

The adult moth never eats. It lives only to produce its eggs and then dies.

The adult lays its tiny, white eggs upon woolen and silk fabrics, and on furs. From an egg a white clothes-moth caterpillar hatches.

It spends the next few weeks furiously eating the surrounding materials. When fully grown, the clothes-moth caterpillar spins a silk covering, or cocoon, all around itself. In about a week it will emerge as an adult clothes moth and look about for a woolen coat or carpet on which to lay its own eggs.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We are indebted to Terence Reese and the Bridge World magazine for today's hand. South gets to four spades after a club opening bid by West and a heart response by East. He wins the first trick with the ace of hearts over East's queen and studies the hand.

Obviously the hand is going to collapse if East can get in to lead a club through the king. Also South must find some way to get rid of a couple of his clubs on dummy's hearts. Can he accomplish these two things?

Yes, if he can trade his heart loser for a diamond loser. So, South cashes his king of diamonds, leads a diamond to dummy's ace and returns the 10 of diamonds. East plays low and now South jettisons his jack of hearts.

West takes his jack of diamonds and can find nothing better to do than play ace and another trump. South wins in dummy, leads the 10 of hearts, ruffs East's king, enters dummy with another trump, discards two of his three clubs on the nine-eight of hearts and makes his contract.

Ask the Jacobys

The bidding has proceeded:
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♣ Dbl. Pass

A Canadian reader wants to know if the two-club double was for takeout.

The answer is no. Once your opponents have bid three suits all doubles are primarily for penalty.

Monte remembers old days

By Charlie Zeno

LOS ANGELES — Monte Johnson still rubs his eyes in disbelief when he reflects back to the days when he was a ninthgrader er selling programs and souvenirs in Metropolitan Stadium, Bloomington, home of the Minnesota Vikings.

This week he's preparing to play the key role as middle linebacker for the Oakland Raiders against the Vikings in Sunday's Super Bowl XI at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

"I've heard the old cliche about a dream come true many times and now I realize fully what it means," the 6-5, 240 lb., linebacker remarked at the Raiders' daily press conference in Newport Beach Thursday.

Does he have any feelings about playing against the pro team that represents his home town?

"None in the least," Johnson answered. "My feelings and roots are deeper towards this team that has struggled through much adversity and battled hard to get this far," Johnson has been a starter two seasons, but it always wasn't that way. In fact he admits being, "An all-American bench warmer before Raider boss Al Davis spotted his potential in an All-Star game, the 1973 All-American Bowl, and follwed up by selecting Monte as a second round draft choice.

"I don't have to tell you that being drafted that high by the Raiders had to be one of my top thrills in life," Johnson recalled.

"The last time I started in football was as a defensive tackle in my senior year at high school in Bloomington," Johnson revealed. "In fact, I wasn't even recruited by the University of Minnesota until that school found out that Nebraska and a couple of other major colleges were interested in me."

Johnson took the scholarship offer from Nebraska and for four years, was a back-up defensive tackle under coach Bud Devaney, hardly something to lift the eyebrows of professional football scouts.

"I knew then that I needed some exposure if I were going to get a chance in pro ball," Johnson recalled. "So I asked the coach to get me into a post-season all-star game. He had to pull some strings but got me in, which turned out to be the big break I needed."

Going back to his grade school days big Monte remembers watching Fran Tarkenton play quarterback for the Vikings. "I didn't sell many programs because I usually sat in the end zone and got a kick out of all those guys chasing Fran. Somehwo he always managed to scramble loose and find an open man for a pass."

Sunday, Johnson may be one of "those guys" chasing Tarkenton, all though his primary duties call for action in the defensive secondayr.

"The important thing for us on defense is to stop the Vikings on first downs. If we can do this it may force them to do things they don't want to do," Johnson figured.

Asked if he could compare Minnesota on offense against any of hte current NFL clubs, Johnson said, "The Vikings are similar to the Pittsburgh Steelers on the run from tackle to tackle, while their passing game, Tarkenton moves around a lot like Steve Grogan of New England, although he may be more mobile. Fran just seems to have that sixth sence about moving out of the pocket when he has to and finding a receiver."

Before every play, Johnson, who wears jersey number 58, gets his defensive signal from coach Don Shinnick on the side line. "We go along as instructed unless the formation on offense dictates something different. Then if I don't make a change I catch hell from the coach."

It took the better part of two years for Johnson to learn a new position as understudy to former all-Pro Dan Conners, a popular veteran. And guess who didn't hesitate to helf out this brash young rookie out of Nebraska who had designs on his job? Dan Connors, that's who.

A grateful and humble Johnson now says, "Connors always was ready to help me on techniques and when I asked questions, even though he knew I was being groomed as his eventual replacement. The man has a lot of class and I have all the respect in the world for him."

Johnson says that one of the toughest things he had to learn as a linebacker was patience. "The secret to pass defense is patience and staying in your zone. If you go chasing a man coming through, another is sure to be behind him and wide open for a pass. You have to be consciouse of your area in the zone defense."

Besides Tarkenton, the RAider linebacker feels that the one man his team must contain is Chuck Foreman who according to Johnson, "Has no peer in football when it comes to running on natural grass. Any one else attempting to make the same cuts or moves likely would trip up or fall down. He's not only elusive, but powerful," Johnson says of the NFL Player of the Year.

Meanwhile there's a possiblity that Super Bowl XI may be played in the rain, or even mud, according to latest forecasts by the weatherman.

Coach John Madden said his immediate concern was the condition of the practice field at UC Irvine. "We need to get in good work outs Thursday and Friday, but will practive regardless of the weather," Madden announced at the Thursday morning press conference.

"I hope they covered the Rose Bow! with tarpeaulin. If they did then the main job for officials on game day will be to keep the ball dry," ha added.

Madden reported that with the exception of wide receiver Mike Siani, that the Raiders are in pretty good shape physically. Siani is working out with the team and his injured knee has responded well to treatment. His status will not be known until game day, Madden said.

Cavaliers rout GS

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Austin Carr spearheaded a second-period surge for the Cleveland Cavaliers who ended Golden State's four-game winning string with a 129-100 National Basketball Association rout Thursday night.

Carr scored 22 of his 28 points in the first half, dropping in 16 in the second period as the Cavaliers took a 63-44 advantage.

The Cavaliers, who led by as much as 11 points several times in the first period, saw the Warriors creep to 37-36 and 39- 38, the last with 6:22 left in the half.

From that point until 6:29 of the second half, Cleveland outscored the Warriors 46-14, winding up with a 42-point third quarter to tie a team record for a single quarter.

The Cavaliers, who shot 64 per cent from the floor in the first three periods, coasted the rest of the way to their third victory in their last four games. The victory moved them to a half-game lead over Houston in the NBA Central Division.

Jamaal Wilkes led the Warriors with 22 points.

Campy Russell and Bobby Smith each added 18 points for the Cavaliers.

Williams, Ng in track trials

By Gary Brown

SAN MATEO — High school basketball will have a large effect on the number of valley prep athletes who will compete in the San Francisco Examiner Track Games trials at the College of San Mateo here tomorrow.

Only Cheri Williams and Paula Ng of Livermore High School will compete in the events. Both will particpate in the women's open action in the morning.

Paula, who injured a leg in the East Bay Athletic League finals last spring, and was unable to advance to the state meet, will run the 60-yard dash and compete in the long jump. Williams will run the 880-yard run.

"I've been working out every day," Williams said. "But I think 'll be in tough against some of the runners. Most of the girls are from AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) competition and they're tough. Margueta Belk from Silver Creek High of San Jose is running in that event and she's the defending state champion in the 440.

"I think I'll have to run at least a 2:20 to qualify for the finals," she went on. "The top five go on to the finals."

Granada High School has several outstanding individuals but none will compete in the meet. Kathy Honour, one of the best long jumpers in Northern California, is playing basketball and thus, will not jump in the trials.

A similar situation exists in the boys' high-school division events, which will be run off in the afternoon. Dublin High School has several fine sprinters and hurdler but will not compete in the meet, due largely to the basketball season.

"Many of our top athletes (hurdlers Chuck Gangnuss and Jim Boulware and sprinter Jon Batchelor) are on the basketball team so they won't be at San Mateo," admitted Dublin head mentor Tom Cathcart.

Gangnuss won the North Coast Section 120-yard high hurdles last spring and was a state meet particpant but there will not be a hurdles race in the high school division.

Events included in the boys' high school division include the 60-yard dash, high jump, two-mile relay, two-mile and mile relay.

There will also be boys and girls' age-group division events in the morning and a special Northern California media 100-yard dash featuring some of the finest sprinting talent in the sportswriting field.

The Examiner Game finals will be held January 21 at the Cow Palace.

Angel shortstop dies in accident

BATON ROUGE, La. — California Angels shortstop Mike Miley, a quarterback at LSU before turning to professional baseball, died Thursday when his sports car slammed into a culvert and overturned, police said. He was 23.

Religious services and burial were scheduled for Friday afternoon in Metairie, a suburb of New Orleans.

Miley was the third major league baseball player to die in car wrecks in the past four months, and the third young exLSU quarterback to die untimely deaths in the past eight years.

Last weekend, Milwaukee Brewers' relief pitcher Danny Frisella died in a dunebuggy accident near Phoenix. Last October, relief pitcher Bob Moose of the Pittsburgh Pirates died in another car crash.

In 1968, Trey Prather was killed in Vietnam after leaving LSU to join the armed forces. In 1970, Butch Duhe died of a brain hemorrhage in mid-career at LSU.

Police Chief Howard Kidder said the Miley crash occurred about 2 a.m. Thursday.

Miley played in only 14 games for the Angels last season, batted 38 times, hit .184 with four home runs and four RBI.

Willie, SF come to terms

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Former San Francisco Giants first baseman Willie McCovey reached contract agreement with the club on Thursday but whether he plays again is conditioned upon his ability to make the team in spring training.

A Giants spokesman said McCovey, who was traded to San Diego and went unclaimed in the 1976 free agent re-entry draft, will report to the Giants' spring training camp on March 1.

The spokesman said McCovey, 39, will be given the agreed upon contract if he makes the team. Contract terms were not disclosed.

After 13 years with the Giants, McCovey was traded to the Padres in October 1973 for pitcher Mike Caldwell. He was a pinch hitter with the Oakland A's part of last season but played out his option.

The big slugger has a major league career total of 465 home runs. His annual salary reportedly peaked at $125,000.

Tito Fuentes, another former Giant traded to San Diego, also has expessed an interest in returning to San Francisco. Fuentes, with an annual pay of about $75,000, went unclaimed in the draft. He said he was offered the same salary after batting .263 for San Diego last season, but he said he "will not lower myself to play for the same money."

Both McCovey and Fuentes live in the San Francisco Bay area.

Rev. Harry Heiser

Presbyterians install Rev. Heiser

The installation of Rev. Harry Heiser, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Livermore will be observed Sunday, Jan. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sanctuary.

Rev. Heiser is a graduate of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He has served several churches in the eastern United States and most recently served as a counselor at Austin College in Sherman, Texas. The minister, his wife and the couple's three children reside in Livermore. Special music and a reception will also highlight the service.

Special Revival

LIVERMORE — Stonybrook Full Gospel Church in Niles Canyon, Fremont is sponsoring a special revival on Jan. 12, 13, and 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Dania Hall, corner of 2nd. and N Sts. in Livermore.

The Douglas family will be featured at the Hour of Inspiration Sunday, Jan. 9 at Nielson School. Tom is also involved in touring the state, often singing in prisons as a part of his musical ministry.

Singer Tom Douglas brings music ministry

DUBLIN — Valleyview Church will present Tom Douglas, his wife Judy, and their five year old daughter Christine, singing at the Hour of Inspiration, the regular worship service, at Nielsen School, 500 Amarillo Rd., at 10 a.m. on Sunday, Jan. 9. The music will include a variety of orchestrated traditional and spiritual hymns. The public is invited to hear this dynamic and talented family.

Tom is a resident of Dublin, who devotes full time to his music ministry. He and his family appear at churches, but he states that the primary thrust of his music ministry is moving around to different institutions such as California and Nevada state prisons, putting on programs. He recently appeared in Arizona prisons.

Locally, Tom's prison ministry includes Juvenile Hall in San Leandro, where he is a member of the "God Squad." This is a group affiliated with Follow-up Ministries Inc., based in Hayward. As volunteers, members of this ministry take a ten week training course, approved by the Sheriff's Dept., which prepares them for assisting youth in Juvenile Hall. Additionally, they have official status in the Alameda County Sheriff's Department through their involvement with the County Courthouse Jail Ministry and Work Furlough Center in downtown Oakland for both men and women.

Tom's style is very acceptable to listeners of all ages and lifestyles. His voice is of high professional quality, capable of expressing deep emotion and tenderness in traditional spiritual hymns and songs, but he sings rhythmic contemporary gospel with equal facility.

Tom and his wife Judy started singing together 12 years ago. They made an album with the help of a professional arranger in Hollywood. But the album didn't get to the top, and after reevaluating their motives and purposes, they decided to use their voices for God. They felt that God was saying, "Hey, I can use you."

Judy states that II Corinthians 2: 14-16 had an influence on their decision. "We feel that our primary thing is to be that sweet fragrance of Christ to those within the church, and beyond the church, and to minister to the needs of individuals. With this musical ministry, we are able to make contact with people, to answer the needs of people on a one to one basis."

Tom spoke of his ministry through song: "We only got started in a really big way in the past few months. We feel that we're more together and prepared for whatever opportunities are there, than ever before. It's been a lifetime of preparation, really."

A handsome family, Tom, Judy, and Christine sing together much of the time, although it is Tom who entertains at the prisons. Judy says it is Tom's ministry. She considers herself and Christine to be a complement to him. Christine has been singing with them only since September when she told her parents that she would sing with them if they would get her a microphone. They told her that if God wanted her to sing with them, he would provide the money for the microphone. The next day a check came which covered the cost of the microphone.

Judy calls it a renewed ministry. "We've found that our source that we draw from is our faith and commitment in God and in Jesus, and in the Bible.

Dave and Judy Travers (The Loved Ones), are the son and daughter-in-law of an Evangelical minister.

Married for four years, they decided to combine their God given talents together with their love for God and their faith in Jesus Christ, and share this faith and message of salvation with others through word and song.

Lawyers Honor Channel 9 News

Channel 9's "Newsroom" has been awarded a Jane A. Harrah Memorial Press Award from the Bar Association of San Francisco for its live Broadcast of the conflict of interest hearings of Joseph Mazzola before the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

"It was the desire of the Awards Committee to see KQED rewarded for the monumental effort put forth televising the hearings," said Gail Griffith, director of Public Affairs for the Bar Association.

Guv says he'd veto death bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. today said he would veto a death penalty bill if the California Legislature sends one to his desk.

He also proposed spending "something under half a billion dollars" for homeowner and renter tax relief.

Brown proposed legislation substituting life in prison without possibility of parole in place of the death penalty. Current law allows parole as soon as seven years after sentencing for life.

The Democratic governor also told a joint session of the California Legislature that his tax plan will give the bulk of the homeowner and renter tax relief to low income Californians.

He said his tax relief plan can be financed — along with a school finance proposal — without a state tax increase, presumably using the big surplus expected in his budget message next week.

Big CC fire destroys home

By BRUCE LEWIS
Times Staff Writer

LAFAYETTE — Fire destroyed a $250,000 home in Lafayette and sent one of its owners scurrying to safety Thursday before 35 firemen could bring the flames under control.

Owner Don Spillane, asleep when flames erupted shortly before 1 p.m., was awakened by an explosion in the house.

He barely had time to get out, grabbing a pair of pants, then watching in shock as his newly - acquired property literally went up in smoke. His new Cadillac, its tires melted and interior gutted, was a junk heap in the driveway. It apparently burned after the carport caught fire and collapsed.

Spillane lay on the side of the road vomiting as firemen attempted to give him oxygen. His shoulders were covered with a fireman's jacket.

An ambulance later carried the 26-year-old owner of Don Spillane's Rare Coins in Concord to John Muir Hospital where he was examined and then released in good health.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation. But one witness told fire inspectors on the scene that flames were coming out of the lower floor of the mansion when he arrived at the house.

Spillane apparently never got a chance to call Consolidated Fire District for help because it was Consolidated Fire Inspector Robert Mangini who first reported the blaze.

He spotted it from Consolidated Fire District headquarters on Geary Road.

The fire in Spillane's house, located at 69 My Road in the hills north of Lafayette, was visible in Oakland and San Francisco, as well as all of Contra Costa County.

The air was so clear Thursday that the flames were visible for up to 10 miles.

Assistant Fire Chief Richard Starr, who was coming back from lunch when he spotted the fire, was first to arrive on the scene at 1 p.m. and immediately called for a three-alarm response.

Seven engine companies, two assistant chiefs, three battalion chiefs and an estimated 35 to 40 men, including off-duty firemen, responded to the fire.

Firemen faced tactical, as well as water problems, according to Assistant Chief Bill Maxfield, one of the coordinating chiefs on the scene.

The only fire hydrant was more than three-fifths of a mile away.

An estimated 3,500 feet of fire hose was strung like a single strand of spaghetti from the hydrant to the top of the hill.

Chief Maxfield said pumpers half-way up the private drive and at the top delivered water to the dozens of lines laid around the rustic mansion.

Special pumps were carried in and used to draw water from the Spillane swimming pool as an additional water supply.

A water tanker with a 2,225-gallon supply, plus 500 gallon tanks from three engines provided the initial water supply until the hose was connected to the hydrant.

The four-bedroom, four-bathroom, octogonal-shaped, glass and wood structure was built by 32-year-old Roger Moore of Lafayette.

Moore, the president of American Water Purification, Inc., in Pleasant Hill, said he sold the house to Spillane and Wayne Skiles, an Oakland coin dealer who lives in Walnut Creek, about five months ago for $250,000.

He still holds an interest in the house and carries insurance on it.

"My wife called me at work and said our house was on fire and my heart dropped'" said Moore, who came to the fire scene. "We just bought a new house. Then she told me it was our old house."

"You just don't know how much of us is in that house," he added. "I don't know why I ever sold it."

The home was equipped with a indoor sauna and revolving, round bed in the master bedroom. The fireplace runs through the center of the master bedroom and living room directly above. Both are octogonal - shaped and enclosed by glass that overlooks the Diablo Valley and Mt. Diablo.

Part-owner Skiles said there had been a party at the house on Wednesday night attended by the directors of the Northern California Association of Professional Nuimismatists (coin collectors). "I sure would like to find out what happened," he said, as he looked upon the burned structure. "I bought into it as an investment. We had just paved the road that leads up here and had planned to landscape in the spring."

Still no booze — break

By MIKE RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When a state board ruled last month that California's minimum price laws for alcoholic beverages were unconstitutional, many consumers hoped for a booze price war over the holidays.

It never happened and, industry opinion has it, prices will stay as they are until the issue wends its way through the courts to a final decision by the state Supreme Court.

"We're figuring it will take somewhere between a year and a year and a half," said George Reece, deputy director of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board, the agency charged with policing liquor price laws.

Violations have been rare, Reece said, with only 134 reported statewide during the last year. Stores seem unwilling to try discount pricing until the courts make a ruling that could shake an industry that had estimated retail sales of $3.9 billion during fiscal 1976.

It was an ABC disciplinary action against a San Francisco liquor retailer for cut-rate prices that was overturned by the California Alcoholic Beverage Appeals Board on Dec. 2 in a ruling that termed the price laws "legalized price fixing."

The price law works like this. The supplier of liquor, beer or wine — which can be the producer, wholesaler or distributor — posts a "minimum" price for the product. Stores may charge more for an item, but the law says they cannot charge less. Supporters of the law contend that competition keeps prices at their minimum level.

A number of other states don't have the minimum price laws and some, including Arizona, have repealed theirs recently.

School on wheels

Several years ago, Nissan Automotive Corporation of America instituted a training program that would reach mechanics at the dealerships. Nissan of America has Regional Training Centers for initial training of Datsun mechanics, but realized the value of a Mobile Training Van which would allow dealership mechanics the opportunity to learn updated and specialized skills and latest equipment operation in actual working conditions without having to travel from the dealership.

Recently, the mechanics at Tri Valley Datsun in Livermore, Calif. experienced a training session with Dave Zellers, a Technical Training instructor from the San Francisco Regional Office. Dave and his training van: equipped with video replay deck, TV, slide and overhead projection equipment, tools components and maintenance library; spent the day with the service staff. During the instruction session one of the many areas studied was the fuel systems of the 240Z.

Dave Zellers, a member of the society of Automotive Engineers, is the youngest of the 21 Technical Training Instructors in the United States. Dave's qualifications include a Bachelor of Science degree in industrial Education, a masters degree from Central Michigan University in Vocational Technical Education. His specialties in school were Automotive Technology and Metal Science. His teaching experience includes high school and college level. Dave has also worked 5 years as a Auto Mechanic.

Dave is espcially proud of the training videotape used during the session at Tri Valley Datsun, he had a hand in its production at the Datsun TV studio. The studio mentioned is used exclusively by Datsun for the production of training films that are constantly being expanded upon and updated for both mechanics and sales staffs all over the United States.

Datsun spends a great deal of time in their training programs and are espcially proud of thier Mobile Training Vans. Datsun believes that the personal contact of the instructors at the dealership give the instructor an immediate sense of what is happening in the field as well helping the dealerships mechanics in dealing with situations as they actually occur.

This program assures Datsun owners the best possible, most up to date service and continued satisfaction and pride of ownership of a Datsun.
